HAUNTED LODGINGS.

Carrier, $2 50 per year.

ear love, I feel your face close to mine, though we are far apart. seas between throb like some wicked heart; purifies the place hear your low robes glide in now out; some angel it may be ng a blesse! memory to me; al bright as eventide. ose stars, which are my fanes, deep, deep eyes shine in my lonel ng the siry castles of its gloom.

nd glittering on its chains. now that you are true; ps your dreams are reaching out to my heart yearns for you. mam on, though years go by !

te be ever pleading in your dream, ad you dream on for aye. [Graphie.

IN SEARCH OF LIGHT. val of Thirty-three more Stuats from China-Three Chinese dies in the Party.

Vestward the star of Empire takes ay," so far west, indeed, that it has the Western Ocean, and is now ding its inspiring rays over the far-Drient in the land of sunny Cathay. hinese, that intensely patriotic and sive people, have at last thrown open wide gates by the sea, and have siled a welcome to the commerce and learning of the world. Whether wader and ball have had anything with the opening of the gates al-to, is not to be discussed in this ection: suffice it to say that the gates been thrown open, and that the herthe Orient, whose head has grown with the philosophy of the centuhas, under the influence of the surious inactivity, and with a vigor is not of age but of breeding, has som of the past, long after Confuorals into the Flowery Land.

stroduced an almost Christian code an instance of this awakening to the of the present age, it will hardly n, and converses in English with and fluency. This is his second range from ten to fourteen years of and have been selected by competi-examination from the higher and over, Phillips gave the following replied the parent, scowli owing robes of the learned class of Il remain here, at the expense of Government, and the remaining eir parents, who are of the high le castes in the preparatory school anghai. They are bright, intelli-boys, and are attired in the blue rientals. Of the thirty-three, thirhave been sent here at the expense and wealthy. Ou-Ngoh-Leung, Commissioner, and an excellent sh and Chinese scholar, accompan to assist Professor Chun-Lauin the chair of Oriental literature. party expect to leave for the East nday. Three Chinese ladies acanied the party, and respecting the reporter made inquiry. As it grave breach of etiquette among hinese to inquire about a man's -possibly because he might not which wife was meant-the reportde his inquiry as delicately as possi-The Commissioner did not appear ed, but elevated his eyebrows with race of a native Parisian, and add himself in the Chinese language u-Ngoh-Leung. To the last mengentleman, whose wives had not equired about, and who was smihappily, the reporter handed a slip the Bulletin of that afternoon, ancing the arrival of the party, and se Chinese ladies." Both gentleperused the slip and smiled as the er explained that he wished to aswhether or not the ladies were

GLEANINGS.

BYXOV LUU WE FER C

Vol. XXXIX .--- No 4.

A STRANGE TALE

Son of a German Count Ronming the Foresis Like a Wild Beast ... Bis Pate ... Bistaken for a Beer and Killed by a Hunter.

New York Herald.]

Moscow, Pa., Oct. 28, 1875. high in the cornand the scattered families inhab-government. a German named Gotleib Scheibel. He Phillips for carelessness. came into the section some five years ago, and stitled hear the border of Luzerne The Speech the Tuolumne Stage and Monroe counties, in the midst of a wilderness almost primitive, and commenced, with the energy and industry characteristic of his race, the liberal hew. Sonora Democrat, 16th.] ing of a farm out of the wild tract he had The down stage from this place was purchased. His family consisted of him-self, his wife, three rugged sons and a fourth boy, of a finer cast of features than the rest and with very little resemblance to the family. This child was about four years old when the family settled in this region, and, being of a weak mind, was allowed every features. weak mind, was allowed every freedom that pertained to the isolated life the men, I have been a driver, boy and man, family led. The boy developed a strange passion for the woods and spent most of his time roaming about on the mountains gathering berries and nuts. During the past two years his excursions became of the toughest outsides that ever left past two years his excursions became Boston for a week's chassez in Yo Semite. ed away, in the immediate vicinity of his home, by Sheibel and other German families who moved in the vicinity 'subsequent to the former's occupancy. The boy was called Johnny, and since he began to extend his visits deeper into the wilderness, would, sometimes, be absent his return home related wild stories. Once he reached home with his flesh lacerated and his body almost denuded of clothing, bearing a young catamount which he had attempted to capture, and finally killed with a club after a terrible struggle. It was useless for his friends to attempt to keep him at home, and so for years he roamed the forests with only the many wild animals that still haunt this wilderness for his companions, the lamp of reason burning too dimly to show him the danger of the life he was leading.

days at a time, sustaining himself by eating nuts, berries and roots, and sleeping in caverns and hollow logs, or in the open air in warm weather. He often on tary visits to the woods he loved so well

Hartford. He went there last startled the fiamily with the announce a microscope?" ut could not take upon himself to of the poor half-witted boy. The grief hat the Government would do. The

the south branch of Bright's Brook, a few miles north of the German clearing, and early on Monday morning they started out to hunt deer. Phillips was driving a ridge with the hounds and started a deer, which made off in the distance of a human liveliest dress; the meadows beneath it, associate, Betty filled the vacuum, the cowered with high salt grass, seemed almost as a sea, the light breeze ruffling with beer, which she would lap from a started a deer, which made off in the distance of a human liveliest dress; the meadows beneath it, associate, Betty filled the vacuum, the covered with high salt grass, seemed almost as a sea, the light breeze ruffling with beer, which she would lap from a saucer until she was stupid.

They just look like warts, they do, and you think you see bugs running—!"

They just look like warts, they do, and you think you see bugs running—!"

They just look like warts, they do, and you think you see bugs running—!"

They just look like warts, they do, and you think you see bugs running—!"

They just look like warts, they do, and you think you see bugs running—!"

They just look like warts, they do, and you think you see bugs running—!"

They just look like warts, they do, and you think you see bugs running—!"

They just look like warts, they do, and you think you see bugs running—!"

They just look like warts, they do, and you think you see bugs running—!"

They just look like warts, they do, and you think you see bugs running—!" started a deer, which made off in the direction of the great swamp which borders on the counties of Luzerne, Monroe and Carbon, and is known as the Shades of Death. The hounds followed it, and he hastened to get a "runaway" in a ridge a mile or so away, where he thought the deer would eventually be chased by the dogs. He reached the point and had had had the point and the point and the point and had the point and the ther thought he fired his buck-shot barrel into the clump. The movement ceased, and Phillips walked to the spot and pulled aside the bushes. What was his horror to see, stretched upon the ground, in an open space among the bushes, the body entered, killing him instantly. A basket nearly filled with beech nuts, stood near, and the boy's hands were full of ectate the point of the joke, for he ing when the fatal shot was fired. 'Blue as yer nose' is not a polite ered pleasantly, "Oh, yes; that is Phillips had heard from local hunters of phrase. Besides, it is ridiculous to speak the eccentric Johnny Sheibel and he of a blue control of the point of the joke, for he ing when the fatal shot was fired. 'Blue as yer nose' is not a polite phillips had heard from local hunters of phrase. Besides, it is ridiculous to speak the eccentric solutions the marriage had no doubt that the boy he had killed had no doubt that the boy he had killed A contemporary mentions the marriage was the poor half-witted child. Knowing of John Sweet to Ann Sour. It is probof mothers-in-law," said Ou-Ngoh-that the German clearing was somewhere ble they meant to set up a lemonade bu-in that locality, he took the body in his siness. and went lightly down the stairs, arms and started to find it. As luck ling softly to himself.

A young scapegrace threw his ball at would have it he reached it without diffi-

A STORY OF SHAME.

At an investigation held on Tuesday At an investigation given by the newstest of "Let us have peace," is a piece
text of "Let us have peace," is a piece
text of "Let us have peace," is a piece
text of "Let us have peace," is a piece
text of "Let us have peace," is a piece
text of "Let us have peace," is a piece
text of "Let us have peace," is a piece
text of "Let us have peace," is a piece
text of "Let us have peace," is a piece
text of "Let us have peace," is a piece
text of "Let us have peace," is a piece
text of "Let us have peace," is a piece text of "When I related to you my history did to difficulties.

The stars which he was in his sixtyowners consciousness. His dark hair was the General Duncan Airlie was in his sixtyowners consciousness. His dark hair was the General's absence and return, Martin older. The stars which he wore on his text of the Peace, to whom passee young lady for consulting her owners consciousness. His dark hair was
the General's absence and return, Martin older. The stars which he wore on his text of the Peace, to whom passee young lady for consulting her owners consciousness. His dark hair was
the General's absence and return, Martin older. The stars which he wore on his text of the Peace, to whom passee young lady for consulting her owners consciousness. His dark hair was
the General's absence and return, Martin older. The stars which he was difficulties. the territory is enforced put the set the territory is enforced put the territory is enforced from the Shallests. Before a German to the english of the greaters and the proposed in the spring or a German phie class which have been presented in the spring or a German phie class which have been presented in the spring or a German phie class which have been presented in the spring or a German phie class which have been presented in the spring or a German phie class which have been presented in the spring or a German phie class which have been presented in the spring or a district of the territory of the spring of was elicited from the Sheibels : Before

o (or Camoun - Carolanden marked that the fact grew to be common gossip in the vicinity. This circumstance led to the emigration of the Scheibels to America, the Count paying his gardener $2,000 and his passage to this country, and agreeing to annually send $200 to pay for the support of the child. This sum had been received regularly by Scheibel, who obstinately refused to state what the name of the nobleman is, he iting the wild region skirting the Poceno The jury, after deliberating for some range of Mountains, in the northern part time, returned a verdict of accidental of Monroe county, this State, is that of death in the case, and reprimanded

Driver Made to the High-

I have met gentlemen of your kind before and I defy any of them to come forward and say that I ever treated them with contempt; on the other hand, it has been my aim to act towards highwayexcuse me, gentlemen, I mean road agents, with that distinguished consideration due their standing in society Hence you will believe me when I say that I have nothing for you this morning. D-n sorry, gentlemen; but the truth of the matter is, Wells, Fargo & Co's boxes are young poor-houses on this route just now, and you couldn't squeeze i picayune out of them to save your sweet necks from the gallows." Whether the trio of "agents" understood this harrangue or not, we cannot say, as they did not reply, but it had the desired effect and no farther attempt was made to molest either the express treasury or the eight passengers on board. We do not, however, commend the policy of barefaced falsehood in cases of this kind

It has the effect of causing highwaymen hunter's garb appeared in the field and "Did you ever look at cheese through

"Jawn!" said his mother. "Boy !" warned his father. "Well, they look wors'n flies heads!"

away, but evidently coming nearer and "My son, give me that microscope, moment he discovered a peculiar sgita- study the beauties of that woodpile!" tion in some laurels about 100 yards If that boy continues to feel the way

The Omnibus.

Mr. Canghavanghutangher, of Indiana has asked the Legislature to change his of a boy, with blood pouring from his side, into which several buck-shot had apt to give a man panes in his "insides As one word brings on another, so does one phrase often bring on other frays.

merely saying that he is a man at present high in the confidence of the German

New Jersey and New York States meet at Alpine, near Tappan Zee. Twenty years ago the farmers of this Ridge devoted their labors to supplying Washington market with vegetables, fruit, and poultry. From early in the afternoon until daylight next morning processions of the great clumsy Jersey market wagons, heavily laden, coursed slowly along the turnpike. At the present time the Ridge contributes but little to the New The General's granddaughter was about leading.

It has the effect of causing highwaymen to lose confidence in a stage driver's truth and veracity and lowers him great-truth and veracity and lowers him greattruth and veracity and lowers him great-old settlers remaining, stretching as they do their broad stone wings regardless of the space occupied, are looked upon with reverential curiosity being esteemed not smoking and beer-drinking must be pur-been there but a few minutes when he ted the lad to the wash room in the base- den, stealing the scents from gayly-orna- voiced canaries. The view from the little heard the cry of hounds some distance ment, bounced him around and said: mented beds; yet these exhalations beer shop's windows, however, was that could not compare with the breath of the of a vast green garden extending far in all in his direction. Almost at the same and you take the axe and go out and withering grass, wafted from fields back directions. of the house where men were making the General puffed away at his pipe to what ye will—yea, what ye can—until its contents were exhausted, when he thy path is rugged still,—O man!

cleanly swept between the golden hills. the station. Martin, "Mat," or "Marty," Thy sorrow will at times take wing, How light and silken and floss-like appear Wilbur, as he was familiarly called by the strings of dried grass after being his gentlemen friends, was a good specitossed into the symmetrical heaps. The immense wagou-loads of hay, their sides rie did not deserve this description, if it immense wagon-loads of hay, their sides fraying and dragging along the winding roads, are most suggestive of bountiful ness habits. Wilbur, though inheriting a While memories dear thy heart doth thrill. crops. There is no procession half so large fortune, also came into possession beautiful as that which files along the of a fine business, which, at the death of country road at nightfall. The sleek- his father-that event taking place when coated herd tread slowly homeward, con- Martin was twenty-four years old-he had tented cows and meek-eyed sheep return- attended to with determined perseverance. ing from the hill-side pasture. Horses He was extravagantly fond of ladies' soci- Nor light, nor mark to point the way; just loosened from plow are driven toward the barn, and the yoked oxen follow, unconscious of their strength. Then come the great hay-loads languidly sweeping the quiet road; the song of the reapers and the lowing of the cattle waiting at the gate were the sounds to which this peaceful pageant marched. These sounds to the old man to all of the entertainthe to all of the entertainthe the gay throngs of New York gather. He had followed in the groove of fashionable society, had danced and flirted with its belies, and had been sought after by the "first families" as an eligible match for marriageable daughters.

Martin Wilbur was tall and slender, with peaceful pageant marched. These sounds to the old man to all of the entertainthe the barn, and the yoked oxen follow, ments, where the gay throngs of New York gather. He had followed in the groove of fashionable society, had danced and flirted with its belies, and had been sought after by the "first families" as an eligible match for marriageable daughters. Martin Wilbur was tall and slender, with peaceful pageant marched. These sounds to the old man remarking: "I must get to bed early to-night, as I leave in the first train the most of the cattle waiting at the groove of fashionable society, had danced and flirted with its belies, and had been sought after by the "first families" as an eligible match for marriageable daughters. Martin Wilbur was tall and slender, with one of these supple figures best described to more of the entertainthe the barn, and the board of Lieutenant Addison, Company and for Lieuten just loosened from plow are driven toward ety, which led him to all of the entertain- Thy trials sore are surely given his tister, and hit her on the back of the head so hard that the bawl came out of head so hard that the bawl came out of weather-beaten, as if pastoral surroundings might be most grateful to him. His eyes were dark and mellow; those Reflections should never be cast on a ings might be most grateful to him. General Duncan Airlie was in his sixty- eyes that sparkle and wink without their During the days intervening between ried," said Wilbur, dumbfounded.

JACKSON MISSISSIPPI, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 15, 1875.

Men find it more easy to flatter than the sent anisety young men to accoughly educated in helicastes for the purpose of became known. On Sunday unorning has denoted in the street of the selection of the settles. Vesterally, an addisting the selection. Vesterally as addisting the selection. Vesterally as addisting the selection. Vesterally as addisting the selection of the settles. Vesterally as addisting to the settles, with their blast of the point of the settles, with their blast of the vesteral time of thirty-three Chinese of the Microscope for his son, a boy of ten part that the old wagons are trunded out to be loaded with sass for New Yorks. The second in the settles with their blast of the part of the second the purpose of the Microscope for his son, a boy of the settles, with their blast to took a small basket and started out to be loaded with sass for New Yorks. The south the settles with their blast of the second the second were carpeted with silky grass, and the attraction of the ridge for the General, tat, tat, tat of the patent mower sent its was but a small room in a house little warning voice over the farm, reminding larger than a shanty. It was kept by a away to his right. After watching the spot a moment he came to the conclusion that the motion of the bushes was caused by a deer, and without a moment's further thought he fired his bush shot harrel.

It that boy continues to reef the way have until its contents were exhausted, when he paced the piazza impatiently, seeming greatly relieved when he heard the ginning of harvest, when the hay is stacked in pyramids and the meadow is stacked in pyram shoulders he had earned during our late precision. He was what men, who are mostly speculations as to what kind of a tress of Willow Farm, as the homestead was called, she paraded more fine lady airs than were becoming when her mother worked so industriously. Miss Gretchen was determined to marry some one who would give her a city home. She was consequently trying hard to entangle Martin Wilbur, or the son of a rich neighbor who wintered in New York. Wilbur chose the society of the General, but Mr. Andrew Barton was a frequent visitor; whether it was to play croquet to conceal his feelings after having, by his carelessness, raised a lump on that beautiful forehead. With protestations of affection he bent over her as she lay

Men find it more easy to flatter than the so of affection he bent over her as she lay

Men find it more easy to flatter than then play partners at croquet with Mr. because he was not free to address her, Wilbur and Mr. Barton. Of course she Wilbur took a letter from his pocket.

I've never been in love," said Wilbur, house. Twenty persons sat down at presses his virtue, and hides it from the knocking the ashes from his pipe. "It was a mere accident that I offered my-self, and I begin to believe my fiances has forgotten me. It's three months since she had benefitted. Excusing herself, which at first rattles its heavy bones. she's written a line. Excuse me to night, inst as she was, in full dress, she stepped threatening to swallow high and low, the little lyou all about how I was booked into her carriage to attend the call. I have your verses, sir; enough of 'wine' She consented. The sight of her ministrates threatening to swallow high and low, the have your verses, sir; enough of 'wine' She consented. The sight of her ministrates and distant, with gaping jaws, at last stumbles over a thread.—Schiller.

Oh, money, money, how blindly thou and 'women.' Now for the 'song." The old man finished his glass of beer and recited in solemn tones these lines;

As heavenly visions of the past-As fairy dreams too sweet to last— As flashing transient meteor star, The tenure of thy days how slight-Existence naught but weary fight-Uncertain future, dark and drear! Doth vibrate on from day to day-

CHAPTER II.

Two Dollars a Year.

me," put in Miss Gretchen. ."We can duty to proscribe his attentions to May, themselves, unless the have no relations n Hartford. He went there last with thirty students, and returned company his present charge. A reporter visitor I him at his aparts in the Falace Hotel. He express the higher heinformed our replied. He express the higher heinformed our representation and his wife accompanied the pure state that he will remain at Hartford me time. In response to the ingular students to America year, he stated that he pressumed us could not take upon himself to that he overerment would do. The grant would not take upon himself to that he overerment would do. The grant would not take upon himself to that he overerment would do. The grant would not take upon himself to that he overerment would do. The grant would not take upon himself to that he overerment would do. The grant would not take upon himself to that he overerment would do. The gried at the flamity with the announcement that little Johnny was dead, the hintorment went that little Johnny was dead, the hintor which he followed these times sud with something of the same industry with which he followed these times will or the lady to who fought for their country's freedom, but for the solid comfort enjoyed therein. Dutch farm houses is attried the flamity with the announcement that little Johnny was dead, the hintorment will alone the staunch particularly with follow the setume thing of the same industry with che followed these times will or the solid comfort enjoyed therein. Dutch farm houses is a startled the flamity with the announcement while the hintorment will be don't he lady to who fought for their country will freedom, but for the solid comfort enjoyed therein. Dutch farm houses is a startled the flamity which he followed these times will replied. Willow, freedom the lady of the lady to who he had been minimated the fished which he followed these times will represent the little Johnny was dead, the hintorment will be dead on the butter himself naving and fire from his alone the staunch she which follows the beaute standing the lady on the flow on the fished the fam of the poor half-witted boy. The grief of the honest German and his wife was for the afternoon and all of the strain the liked best. The General never was the honest at the liked best. The General never was the honest at the liked best. The General never was the honest at the liked best. The General never was the honest at the liked best. The General never was the honest at the liked best. The General never was the honest at the liked best. The General never was the honest at the liked best. The General never was the honest at the liked best at the honest at the ho that love affair which you say disturbs last thing that entered my mind, however, ness of life; yea, and of genius, too, in you. A man like you should not be long engaged. You'll be breaking some hearts in this neighborhood before you know it."

'Don't call it a love affair, General, The night before my departure she invited me to a dinner party at her presses his virtue, and hides it from the She consented. The sight of her intro-tering to the dying woman, whose last days she had made comfortable, deeply impressed me. My feelings were aroused by her benevolence, and impassive as I by her benevolence, and impassive as I am, I betrayed my admiration as we drove from the scene of death. I said to her, 'I bid you good-by for some weeks Love seizes on us anddenly to-night. As you do not care for me, giving us any warning, and our dispose this news will not give you pain.

see here.' She drew from her bosom a and determines us .- Bruy picture of me, which I afterward learned Nothing seems important to me she had had copied from a photograph far as it is connected with morals, borrowed from a mutual friend. I was so the mind cannot feel and treat mathematical overcome by this display of regard that I matics and music, and everything elastic asked her to be my wife. She consented, as a trifle, it has been seduced and I started South the next day, and on my slaved .- Cecil. return she had laid her plans for a European tour. We were to have been united when she returned. This letter contains the denouement of my affair with Marion Addison.

"But her name was not Airlie-she near being elected. did not tell me she had been twice ma whom I married during the war di

The St. Leguis Globe-Democrat of the at luck has this extraordinary story :

Nancy Carey, who died on Sunday even-ing lad, as Not STE Obristy avenue, was consigned to earth. Aunt Nancy, as she was famillarly called, was a colored we-N. VAIN.

N. VAI

Oh, money, money, how blindly that tion or our weakness favors the surprise 'Do I not care for you?' she replied, one look, one glance from the fair, if Arkansas boasts a hamlet called T perville.

A Lehigh quarryman dreamt his wife was a boulder and hurled her from The Hartford Times insinuates that a good overcoat looks hat-rack-tive to an The most provoking thing in this world the politicians think, is to come pretty Bless you, Grant had nothing to de with the crooked whisky business. He takes his'n straight and reg'lar.

New York youths in their twentieth